MILITARY UNIFORMS AND MEMORABILIA PROGRAM FOR QUARTERLY MEETING

The January Quarterly Meeting will be held at the Wilson House on Wednesday, January 18, 2012, at 7:00 p.m. The Port Washington State Bank is providing the community room for the meeting.

Fred Schaefer is the guest speaker at the meeting. He has collected military uniforms and memorabilia for over fifty years. As a teacher of U. S. History at Port Washington High School, Fred used his collection in presentations to his students.

His collection includes items from WWI to the present, including a complete set of West Point uniforms. Fred served in the US Army during the 1961-62 Berlin Crisis.

The presentation reflects Fred's service in the Army and information gleaned from family members and other veterans. Guests are welcome to view his collection after the meeting is finished.

President's Message

What an unbelievable year 2011 was! It was a year that brought a Wisconsin Historical Society Award for the 2010 Maritime Heritage Festival Museum in the Lueptow building, a Wisconsin Historical Society grant that is assisting us in preserving a very unique collection on Wild West artist Dan Muller, a quest for a permanent location that took us through a lengthy process of determining whether we could secure the Fire Engine House, a Capital Fund Campaign that raised over $100,000, and now a search for a building that will fill our needs and be one that is financially manageable.

This has been a long journey of 22 months going back to February of 2010 as we reacted to the news that the Fire Engine House (FEH) that we thought we would be in someday was going to be sold. We gathered information about the building and began to assess what it would take to manage and care for it, formulated what we needed in a building, and finally determined whether we could indeed take it on. This was not a decision that was reached quickly or without a great deal of thought and consternation. It evolved over the 22 months as we sought different options, talked with possible investors and community members, and searched for a way to make it happen. We had the building inspected, appraised, and evaluated for needs. We simply could not make a purchase price and then also have sufficient funds to care for this building long term. It was far too great a risk that most of us were comfortable taking on. It was questionable as to whether the FEH would provide us with the archive and artifact storage that we needed.

Along the way we have had the advice and input of numerous people for which I am grateful. Our committee started out in April of 2010. That group has remained steady in the quest for a permanent location for the Historical Society. A lot of people have given of their time and expertise without cost and we are grateful for their assistance. Roger Kison, Pat Wilborn, Rick Fellenz, Mike Didier, and Wisconsin Historical Society Preservationist Rick Bernstein have been most helpful.

Over time we refined our needs more in line with what will work for the society in terms of museum space, dry archive storage, and office space. We continue to look for a location that will accomplish all of this and one that will be manageable for the society into the future as we head into phase two of our Capital Fund Campaign.

NEW MARINER'S POINT KIOSK

By Geri Zehren

Have you driven past the 1860 Light Station since November? If not, you haven't seen the recent addition of the new kiosk just east of the building. The city worked with the conceptual drawing for Mariner's Point that depicted a wider surface/sidewalk on the southeast corner of Johnson Street. When the construction was done last year, it was with the understanding the Historical Society would put up a kiosk and benches.

As luck would have it, an ambitious Eagle Scout, Will Pfrang, stepped forward with an offer to undertake the venture. A project that was started in November of 2010 is now a reality. Will worked with the city and various members of the Historical Society as he undertook the task.

The 15-year-old scout, with the help of his parents and mentor, Russ Klotz, took on the job from the design planning until the final raising of the structure on a wet and rainy day in November. As the rain ceased, a rainbow appeared over the lake to give the final approval to Will's mission.

The kiosk stands complete with a red roof to match the Light Station. The panel, to be installed in spring, will display the history of the Light Station and its keepers. Funding for the panel came from Sue Ahner, who asked that instead of gifts for her birthday gathering the guests contribute to the Historical Society. Kay Goodwin volunteered her artistic talents to do the panel layout.

This project took the time and talents of many people. To all of them we say, "Thank You."

PORT WASHINGTON CIVIL WAR DRAFT RIOTS

by Michele Weiland

Although no battles between the North and South were fought on Ozaukee County soil, the Civil War directly and dramatically touched the residents of the area. This year marks the 150th anniversary of the Port Washington Civil War draft riots. In memory of this event, articles documenting the draft riots will appear in the Society newsletter throughout the year. Various accounts describe the actions of that day, some more accurately than others. Here we present incidents as they are most frequently documented by reliable sources.

While many European immigrants to America eventually became naturalized citizens of the United States, not all chose to do so, some for fear that they would be drafted into war. Many immigrants came to America to avoid wars that decimated their home countries, and according to U.S. law, foreigners couldn't be forced to fight for their new country. However, some men who had not filed for naturalization were unlawfully conscripted.

As the Civil War dragged on, fewer men were available or willing to volunteer. Therefore, a military draft was instituted. On September 24, 1862, President Abraham Lincoln proclaimed that anyone resisting the draft or showing disloyalty to the United States would be "subject to martial law and liable to trial and punishment by Courts Martial or Military Commission." By means of this momentous proclamation Lincoln also suspended the right to writs of habeas corpus nationwide, which meant that anyone imprisoned by the military during the insurrection could be held without a hearing.

Shortly after this decree, a draft was instituted in Ozaukee and several other Wisconsin counties because they allegedly had not filled their quota of volunteer soldiers. Ozaukee County fell 700 or 800 men short of the requirement, which was quite a large number considering it was the smallest county in the state. Although several hundred county residents had volunteered, some were purportedly not credited to the quota. Some citizens were convinced that the draft was unconstitutional and thought an active show of objection would convince the government not to impose it on them.

On November 10, 1862, Draft Commissioner Pors commenced the draft in front of the Ozaukee County Courthouse in Port Washington. Hundreds of people gathered at the draft site determined to prevent it from taking place. Draft rolls and other courtroom furnishings were destroyed, and Mr. Pors was pushed down the stairs. The crowd moved on to Mr. Pors's home, destroying it, both inside and out, in their anger. Damage was also inflicted upon at least four other residences.

Later that day and into the next, some of the protestors returned to their homes and others arrived to reinforce the group. A sixteen-year-old boy volunteered to ride to Milwaukee, the location of the nearest telegraph office. He rode home on his Shetland pony, which he then exchanged for a fresh horse. He arrived at the army post to request aid from the army troops stationed there.

Once Governor Salomon was informed of the situation, he issued orders. "I hereby authorize you to proceed immediately to Port Washington, with a sufficient military force to enforce the draft, and arrest the leaders and aides and abettors in the riotous proceedings referred to, as being included in the number of those subject to arrest and punishment."

Eight companies of the 28th Wisconsin Infantry traveled by steamer from Milwaukee to Port Ulaio, a few miles south of Port Washington. Some of the soldiers disembarked there and marched to Port Washington. As they neared the city, the Governor later testified before the Supreme Court of Wisconsin, they spotted 100 to 200 rioters, most of whom carried guns, and some of them

LIGHT STATION NEWS

by Kathie Gordon

The Light Station (LS) is closed and buttoned up for the season. The tower railing has been replaced with a composite material instead of the wood rail, which was severely rotted. Work was done by Ed Karrels and Justin Karrels (no relation to each other!). A new front door is being constructed and will be installed in the spring.

Kathie Gordon and Rick Smith will be working on increased publicity for the LS, as the number of visitors this year was down again (1,488), along with the number of bus tours.

We have created a LS gift certificate that can be purchased at the Historical Society office. Each certificate sells for $4 and is good for one free tour of the LS—a nice gift to give visiting family and friends.

As always, we are looking for more volunteers to work as tour guides and to lend a hand with various “housekeeping” duties around the LS. Being a tour guide is a very rewarding adventure and you meet a lot of great people! There’s no need to climb to the tower if that is not your forte; we always arrange to have one guide on each shift do that portion of the tour. And speaking of shifts, we are changing our hours of operation just a bit. Henceforth, our Saturday and Sunday hours will be from 12:00 to 4:00 pm, and we are also offering split shifts, so a tour guide needs to only do a 2-hour stint if that works better for him or her. So, if you are looking for a little adventure on a Saturday or Sunday, call me and I will happily welcome you to our group! Call: Kathie Gordon, 262-268-9734.

Check out the holiday lighting around the LS, thanks to Rick. We will be opening again in mid-May 2012 with hopes to increase our number of visitors.

NEW BOARD MEMBER

At the Annual Meeting in October, Society members elected Sue Bruner, Mark Dybdahl, and Lee Schlenvogt for three year terms. New board-member, Lee Schlenvogt, is replacing Angie Cope who declined a second three year term.

At the November Board meeting, the Board elected Jackie Oleson, President; Lee Schlenvogt, Vice-President; Kathie Gordon, Secretary; and Sue Bruner, Treasurer.

fired on the soldiers. About 50 protestors were captured.

Meanwhile, the other soldiers continued to the scene of the riot by steamer. Faced with a force of U.S. government soldiers, the rioters quickly fled. Some of the riot leaders escaped, but many others were caught. A provost court was set up at the county court house.

Eighty-one people were judged guilty of resisting the draft and were taken to Camp Washburn in Milwaukee, where they were joined by 49 more. The rioters were later transferred to the Camp Randall stockade in Madison. After holding them for about three months, charges were dropped, and the prisoners were released.

Just days after the riot, the Ozaukee County draft resumed in Port Washington.

OUR THANKS

2011 saw a diverse group that numbered more than 67 members and friends that gave more than 6,000 volunteer hours toward the society and its endeavors. They .....

- worked the 1860 Light House, guiding, repairing, and cleaning,
- put on events throughout the year that were enjoyed by members and friends,
- greeted visitors at the Maritime Heritage Festival and put on historical programming,
- ran a Society rummage sale that benefitted the preservation of our Dan Muller collection,
- folded Franklin Street Walking Tour guides that are given to residents and visitors,
- served as members of our Board of Directors,
- put on quarterly meetings that featured the library, filling stations, and car dealerships,
- served on the Fire Engine House Committee/

Capital Fund Campaign,

- helped to develop an informational kiosk on the 1860 Light House,
- worked in the office cataloging donations, acknowledging gifts, assisting visitors with research requests, and doing the business side of the Society,
- helped to get our oral histories video-taping program started.

It is a heart filled thank you that we give all of our volunteers, for all the jobs that you do, big and small, exciting and tedious. We could not exist without you. Please join us again in 2012 to assist in any way you can. We are only as strong as the dedication of our members. We look forward to another year and more ways to share the history.

2012 SOCIETY MEMBERSHIP CHANGES

The Port Washington Historical Society looks forward to you joining its mission of preserving and sharing our local history by renewing your 2012 membership. New for 2012 are the Society's membership categories. The Board approved the new form and revised categories at its December meeting. You will note that the regular basic memberships remain the same as in the past, and the business memberships will remain at $75 and will run from April to April. Life memberships have been discontinued. The present benefits for the Life and Charter members will continue as previous. Charter, Life, and Annual members have the opportunity to enhance their membership status that will include additional benefits.

Membership fees support the Society's operating expenses for maintaining the resource center and office. Your membership provides quarterly newsletters, sponsors quarterly meetings that highlight the history of the city, and additional benefits. It gives the resource center volunteers the ability to care for the many donated historical items that the Society shares with the public through exhibits in business windows, participation in the Maritime Heritage Festival each August, and with individuals seeking research information. Your support helps the PWHS be a visible part of the community. Members are encouraged to visit the PWHS resource center.

2012 holds the promise of securing a permanent home, one where PWHS can establish a small local history museum, increase its ability to catalog and care for archives and artifacts, and become a more visible presence within the community.

If the Society does take on a permanent home, a building in addition to the 1860 light house, additional operating expenses will be incurred. Please join us at this exciting period of time as PWHS begins its 21st year as a society.

You can renew at one of the regular memberships or consider one of the enhanced memberships. If you are a current charter or life member, you can remain at that level with your current benefits. With your help PWHS has the ability to make its visions happen.

PW HISTORICAL SOCIETY GIFT SHOP

by Geri Zehren

A REMINDER!

It is never too early to shop for your friends and loved ones. The new offering this year is the book, "Images of America, Port Washington" by Rick Smith and Kathie Gordon. Published by Arcadia Press, it reflects the rich history of our city with a wonderful variety of vintage pictures.

Pictures always make great gifts. Choose the Light Station print by Shirley Gruen, the Dave Hackett print of the historic buildings of Port Washington, or one of the old maps of early Port Washington. Better yet, get them all as they are great reminders of our history.

PWHS also has a variety of great ornaments to hang on a tree or tuck into a Christmas stocking.

We encourage you to stop and shop on Mondays and Thursdays, 1:00 to 4:00 pm or call to make an appointment: 262-269-9150. If you are shopping on Franklin Street, stop and shop at the Portico Gift Shop to see the selection of our items for your gift giving. Please say a special thank you to them for sponsoring the sales of our items throughout the year.
